stitutional Suggestion.

Stor of The Post.

Wille. Texas. September 10.—Your s about having a new constitucod, provided they could be acted the interests of the people, and cure better government. But my the upon many constitutional con-Texas leads me to think that been a congregation of people es with a particular ax to grind. Sture convention be any better in the past have been? That tion. In reading your editorial at of the 6th instant, upon "Conat of the 6th instant, upon "Cond Revision." and the remarks of attorney." it occurred to me that ea publish daily a succint statethe revisions required, that it convincing that such revisions are y accessary. And by inviting the semity generally and the people for to suggest such revisions as stely required, the list would besemblets one in a very short time.

Son the above suggestion, It being d that existing constitutional probould be repealed and the suggesstituted in place thereof, and taksuggestions of your "able attorney" mencement, the changes in the son should comprise, in part, as in should comprise, in part, as oreme court to consist of nine at to remain in perpetual session stal of the State.

State for such district office s, and as to bresent turisdiction to have that district fulges and attoriety at and I would add that county are quarterly sessions, with power setial sessions at any time; that is criminal cases must confront are one time, and the testimony siness then written down and that of the state of the sessions of the sessions at any time; that is criminal cases must confront are one time, and the testimony siness then written down and thall be good testimony at any stag. (This would do any with the court of the way.) But to continuer the state of the way.) But to continuers invented the state of the way.)

ethers investing $50,000 or more subst from taxes for ten years.

Stead law to remain as it is, siten to the above suggested resold like to add a few more:

In a to the present qualifications to be should be a citizen of the and none but those who can least a boil tax receipt of the when voting should be entitled any election, general, special or bermanent school fund should sact, and only the interest active safe investment of that used for school purposes.

The safe investment of that used for school purposes.

The many more suggestions, birained to leave that for those head what revisions should be than I do. A suggestion that wive a bonus to contemplated induce their building, of not to or less per mile, fund raised issation, and paid in annual collected, might be a good used not allow the tesuing the voters of Texas have condemned most emphatically. The min-take in the late proposed amendment was that the limit of taxation was 2 per cent (enough to consume present values in fifty years), instead of placing the limit on the amount to be given railroads upon their completion.

amount to be given railroads upon their completion.

The poople understand that speedler trials in criminal cases are absolutely required not only in fustice to the prisoner, but that the helding of princers for so long a time in county falls should cease. We have from thirty to sixty prisoners in our county fail constantly and the expense keeps our county financially swamped all the time. A county court, as suggested, would remedy all this.

The Post has taken the stand that "Constitutional Revision" is required, and if you would act as suggested it would give the people an opportunity to state what changes they require in constitutional law. Should you thus ever perfect a revision, then put it to a vote of your subscribers, and if they adopt it that would bring shout a constitutional revision on correct lines, instead of having one submitted by schemers.

The Rational Decay of Patriotism.

The Rational Decay of Patriotism.

To the Editor of The Post. Rosenberg, Texas, September 18. - ! memorable utterance of record in the an. nals of Texan oratory dropped from the lips of the distinguished and lamented Throckmorton, on being hissed down while making a union speech at a secession convention in this State on the eve of the civil war: "When the rabble hiss the patriot may well tremble." That he afterwards fought gallantly to sever the union was but a manly acquiescence of union was but a manly acquiescence of personal opinion to what he conceded to be the superior voice of his State, but it is sadiy in evidence of a possible misapprehension of what patriotism really demands of us. At this day and time if a man can not love his country without loving the entrenched corruption and jobbery with which it seems almost ready to fail to pieces, such patriotism looks to be of doubtful virtue, to say the very least of it.

In the event of a war with any foreign

In the event of a war with any foreign power an American soldier in battle would probably feel puzzled to know which way HERRIE'S School of Music, fall term commences September 1; practical courses for biginners, advanced pupils and those desiring to qualify as teachers; plane, violin, guitar, etc.; instruments supplied for practice; studio and readence 1713 McKinney avenue. probably feel puzzled to know which way to turn his gun when he saw among his own countrymen certain exalted rascals who have done him and his country far more actual harm than have all the foreign armies that were ever arrayed against the American flag. Justice and humanity are not bounded by National lines.

In the attitude and spirit of a hissing rabble we have today a marketed press, decrying as a "ranting idlot or anarchist" anyone who dares raise a voice against "the Brittsh-American slave trade," which influential papers are paid to whitewash as "popular government," and which Brittain chuckles over while she gloats upon the soft snap, and sneeringly refers to it as "the American experiment in republican government." It is enough to make even a modern Sodomite quake with fear of a shower of fire and brimstone. It is almost enough to quicken "robed justice" to a sense of humanity, even while issuing the writ of injunction against the cry of starvation.

the writ of injunction against the cry of starvation.

It is plain to anyone who is willing to open his eyes that Mr. Cleveland's anari at Lord Salisbury, in the Venezuela matter, was not even intended for a bluff; it was purely a premeditated farce, and doubtless was so understood by Julian Pauncefote, who likely helped Oiney fax it up for Cleveland to sign on his return from the duck hunt on the coast of North Carolina. It afterwards leaked out that the "Orinoko Land company." an American concern, had obtained soma $,00,000 acree of rich mineral and agricultural lands in the disputed territory, acquiring title from the English, which would revert to Venezuela should the boundary be deto Venezuela should the boundary be de he following fable:

Once upon a time a large buildeg and a very small felst were engaged in a contro-versy over some prey, consisting of a bone and a jet of marrow-fat, which apparently and a jer of marrow-fat, which apparently all belonged to the feist. In the meantime a third dog came up growling, and feigning friendship for the feist, constituted himself "a commission" to deedde the rights of the property. This third dog proved to be one of the buildog's grown pups, and in special favor at the paternal kennel, but overcome by a delicate aentiment of magnanimity, he generously awarded the bone to the feist. Next day the third dog came home with belly dragging the ground and his meuch smeared all over with marrow-fat.
